Hop. ANTHONY KENNEDY OF MARYLAND,

AGAINST THE ADMISSION OF MINNESOTA.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, before the final vote is taken, I desire to say a few words in explanation of the vote 1 shall give. I do not rise for the parpose of discussing at length any of the provisions either of the bill or of the constitution submitted to us. I intend to vote against the admission of Minnesota upon the simple and broad ground that in my humble judgment its broad ground that in my humble judgment its constitution contains provisions directly at variance with the Constitution of the United States. I am opposed to it because it involves a principle, in my humble judgment, directly in conflict, not only with the Constitution of the United States, but with the rights of the Southern States. It claims the constitutional power to confer the right of suffrage upon a class of inhabitants not recognized by the Constitution of the United States. It involves a principle which comes directly in conflict with the principles of United States. It involves a principle which comes directly in conflict with the principles of a party that I have the honor to represent on this floor, whose great leading doctrine is directly in conflict with this principle; and I should be un just to mysclf and recreant to the duty that is devolved upon me, if I did not vindicate the principle of that party, to a slight extent, at least, in giving the reason why I vote against this bill. I am not now referring particularly to the bill for the admission of Minnesota at all; because really that bill is a matter of very little importance to me; but I intend to vote against the admission of the State with this constitu-

Sec. 7. Every person who, by the provisions of this article, shall be entitled to vote at any election, shall be eligible to any office which now is, or hereafter shall be, elective by the people in the district wherein he shall have resided thirty days previous to such election, except as otherwise provided in this constitution, or in the constitution and laws of the United States.

Now, sir, the ground I take, and the ground taken by the party that I have the honor to represent, is that alicn suffrage and squatter sovereignty must be repudiated. Having asserted these principles before the people of my own State, and being prepared to vindicate them here, I cannot give ny sanction to the admission of a State with constitution containing so clear an infraction of the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, ss that article contains; for if you' admit the right of aliens, not naturalized, to take part in your elections-men who really cannot elaim the protection of the Government; who have no right to come here and petition for a redress of grievances until the mantle of citizenship has been put upon them, in accordance with the laws of Congress and the Constitution of the United States-you permit that class of individuals in this country to control directly the action of Congress, and, perhaps, the destiny of this nation.— Sir, I know that I am taking very broad ground in making this declaration—I know that I am assuming much in this body when I undertake to say that people who are not citizens of the United States have no right to vote by the suffrage which may be conferred upon them by the action of a State government; but it has been contended on this floor, and ably and strongly by some of the giant intellects of former days, that the principle on which I act in this matter is a correct one .-We are now, in some degree, reaping the fruits the loose and cheap right of suffrage which has been conferred upon the people of this country. There has been of late a power aggregating itself in one section of the country upon the adverse proposition to that which I have stated here, which, if not ehecked, if not controlled, will before long sweep from us that right and that equality which we of the Southern States hold in this

Upon a former occasion, I said that I was op posed to squatter sovereignty, because it dissurbed the principal equilbrium that had existed between the States, on a strict construction and enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the dangers that are likely to result to enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the dangers that are likely to result to enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the dangers that are likely to result to enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the dangers that are likely to result to enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the dangers that are likely to result to enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the dangers that are likely to result to enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the dangers that are likely to result to enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the dangers that are likely to result to enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitution of the gnarantees of the constitution of the gnarantees of the constitution of the gnarantees of the gnarantees of the constitution of the gnarantees o enforcement of the gnarantees of the Constitu-tion of the United States. I opposed it because it opened the door to an unequal contest with persons who came here and claimed, through their Representatives who had a voice in Con-ter of the gnarantees of the Constitution, which was a comgress, the right 10 administer this Government, and to direct its policy directly in opposition to and the States of the South, for the protection of the conceded principles of the Constitution when it was framed. When the Constitution was and so greatly invaded. I do not desire to proframed the Southern States of this Confederacy were upon a footing of perfect equality with all the purpose of explaining the reasons why I the States of the Union, and my desire has been shall give my vote against the admission of Min to do nothing to destroy that equality

Mr. President, when Congress has exercised ilar authority on the part of the State; and to suppose that the State could do this would make this provision of the Constitution of the United States nagatory. The power has been given to the Congress of the United States and to suppose that the State shall be constitution. The congress of the United States having the congress of the United States and the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States, having the power in the Congress of the United States and the Congress of the United States and the United States are the Congress of the United States and the Congress of the United States country from aggregation of power that might be the result of allowing States to hold out induce vote? ments to emigrants. It was to protect us against that interpolation or subversion of the principles of this Government, which will necessarily ereep If a man has been naturalized in conformity with the Government, imported from foreign countries, and brought here directly to carry out see tional purposes and for sectional objects only. similar authority on the part of the State. To of Southern rights and interests under such a suppose that the States could pass naturalization, would states.

I connected Mr. Pickwick with a club because of suppose that the States could pass naturalization, with a club because of the original suggestion, and I put in Mr. Winkle expressly for the use of Mr. Seymour. We started with a number of twenty-four pages instead be to make the provision of the Constitution

He said further—I quote from his speech on the Michigan bill in 1836:

"To suppose that a State can make an alien a citizen of the State, or, to present the ques-tion more specifically, can confer on him the right of voting, would involve the absurdity of giving him a direct and immediate control over the action of the General Government, from which he has no right to claim protection, and to which he has no right to present a petition.

That the full force of the absurdity may be felt, it must be borne in mind that every department of the General Government is either directly or indirectly under the control of the voters in the several States. The Constitution wisely provides that the voters for the most numerous branch of the Legislatures in the several States shall vote for the members of the House of Representatives; and, as the members of this body are chosen by the Legislatures of the States, and the Presidential electors either by the Legislatures or voters in the several States, it follows, as I have stated, that the action of the General Government is either directly or indirectly under the control of the voters in the several States. Now, admit that a State may confer the right of voting on all allens, and it will follow, as a necessary consequence, that we might have among our constituents persons who have not the right to claim the protection of the Government, or to present a petition to

This, to my mind, is conclusive; it is an ar gument binding with such force on my judgment, that I never can yield the principle. But Mr. Calhoun went further in discussing this question, and I beg that I may be allowed to quote further from him, because surely I think tion which she has sent here. Its seventh article, in regard to the elective franchisc, declares:

that his arguments will have more force and more effect, when fairly put before the country, and fairly understood by the Senate, than anything I "Sec. 1. Every male person of the age of twen'ty one years or upwards, belonging to either of

In speaking of the object which the framers of the Constitution had in con-ferring this power, Mr. Calhoun said:

"In conferring this power the framers of the Constitution must have had two objects in view; one to prevent competition between the States in holding out inducements for the emigration of foreigners; and the other, to prevent their im proper influence over the General Government through such States as might naturalize for-'eigners, and could confer on them the right of 'exercising the elective franchise, before they could be sufficiently informed of the nature of our institutions, or were interested in their pre

That, sir, is the great principle on which stand. It is in defense of that right that my own party has in its platform laid down the doctrine that aliens not naturalized shall not exercise the rights of American freemen. There is a wide difference between privileges granted and rights claimed. I am only contending against the right of a State to confer power which has a direct control not only over the legislation in these Halls, but that has a power to control the Presi-dential election itself. I hope I may be permit-ted, in an illustration of this view, to quote still further from Mr. Calhoun:

"Both of these objects would be defeated, i the States may confer on aliens the right of voting and the other privileges belonging to eitizens. On that supposition it would be almost imposible to conceive what good could be obtained, or evil prevented, by conferring the power on Congress. The power would be perfectly nugatory. A State might hold out every improper inducement to emigration, as freely as if the power did not exist; and might confer on the alien all the political privileges belonging to a native born citizen; not only to the great injury of the government of the State, but to an improper control over the government of the Union. To illustrate what I have said: suppose the dominant party in New York, finding political power about to depart from them, should, to maintain their ascendency, extend the right of suffrage to the thousands of aliens of 'every language, and from every portion of the world, that annually pour into our great emporium; how deeply might the destiny of the whole Union be affected by such a measure. It might, in fact, place the control over the General Government in the hands of those who different as to the intcreats of the country New York gives about one-sixth of the elector al votes in the choice of President and Vice President; and it is well known that her politi eal institutions keep the State nearly equally divided into two great political parties. The addition of a few thousand votes, either way, might turn the scale, and the electors might, in fact, owe their election, on the supposition to the votes of unnaturalized fore gners. The Presidential election might depend on the electoral vote of the State, and a President be ehosen in reality by them; that is, they might give us a King."

Mr. President, I think there is a clear illustrapromise made between the States of the North long this debate any further. I rose simply

Mr. Johnson, of Tennessee. Before the Senits authority by passing a uniform law of naturalization, it excludes the right of exercising a sim rightly a very important question involved in his the Congress of the United States to establish a contending that when a man has been made a uniform rule of naturalization for the express, eitizen of the United States by the naturaliza simple purpose of protecting the minority in this tion law of Congress, any State into which the other branch of Congress in accordance with the laws of the State in which he resides; and, if you allow aliens to vote for members of Congress, they may control your legislation here, and introduce a system of policy entirely at variance with that upon which the Government was originally formed.

Now, sir, in presenting the views that I have submitted to the Senate, I am not standing aloue. In vindication of this principle which I assert, I bring to my support the doctrine proclaimed here by one of the most diatinguished Senators whose voice has ever been heard In this Hall. I will, by permission of the Senate, read upon this point by permission of the Senate, read upon this point be true that, when an individual is once made a the views of no less a man than John C. Calhoun, eitizen of the United States, any State into which was not novel, and had been already much used;

"But, to pass to the question immediately be-fore us. This, as I have stated, does not involve the question whether a State ean make right to prescribe the qualifications to be pos-sessed by those who shall vote for members of 'a convention to form a Constitution for Michi'gan. Reason and precedent concur that Con'gress has the right. It has, as I have stated,
'been exercised in every similar ease. If the 'right does not exist in Congress, it exists no'where. A Territory, until it becomes a State,
'is a dependent community, and necessaries. 'is a dependent community, and possesses no political rights but what are derived from the community on which it depends. Who shall or shall not exercise political power? and what shall be the qualifications possessed by them? and how shall they be appointed? are all questions to be determined by the paramount com-munity; and, in the ease under consideration, to be determined by Congress, which has the right, under the Constitution, to prescribe all necessary rules for the government of the Territerics, not inconsistent with the provisions of the Constitution.
"This very bill, in fact, admits the right. It prescribes that the people of Michigan shall vote for the convention to form her Constitution on becoming a State. If it belongs to the Territory of Michigan (she is not yet a State) to determine who shall vote for the members of the convention, this attempt on our part to designate who shall be the voters would be an uneon who shall be the voters would be an unconstitutional interference with her right, and ought to be objected to as such, by those opposed to our views. But if on the other hand, the view I take be correct, that the right belongs to Congress, and not to the Territory, the loose, vague, and indefinite manner in which the voters are de scribed in the bill affords a decisive reason for its recommitment. I ask, who are the people of Michigan? Taken in the ordinary sense, it 'means every body, of every age, of every sex,

'of every complexion, white, black, or red, aliens
'as well as citizens. Regarded in this light, to 'pass this bill would sanction the principle that Congress may authorize an alien to vote, or confer that high privilege on the runaway slaves from Kentucky, Virginia, or elsewhere; and thus elevate them to the dignity of citizens, enjoying under the Constitution all the rights and privileges in the States of the Union which appertain to eitizenship."

"My colleague insists that to deny the right for which he contends would be to confer on Congress the right of prescribing who should or who should not be entitled to vote in the State, and exercise the other privilege belonging to eitizens; and portrayed in strong language the dangers to the rights of the States from such (authority 15 belowers) authority. If his views are correct in this re-speet, the danger would indeed be imminent, but I cannot concur in their correctness. Under the view which I have taken, the authority of Congress is limited to the simple point of passing uniform laws of naturalization, or, as I have shown, simply to remove alienage. To this extent it may clearly go, under the Constitution; and it is no less clear that it cannot go an inch beyond, without palpably transcending its pow-ers and violating the Constitution."

That is the only principle I have stated. It s to confine the right to vote to persons who have the rights of eitizens, not only in one State, but over the whole land. It is to prevent an aggre gation of power in a class of people who cannot claim the protection of this Government, who have no right to petition Congress for a redress of grievances. It is to prevent the minority of the people of these States from being overcome by a power of these states from being overcome by a power of this character, aggregated for the purpose of mere sectional advantage. It is so directly in conflict with all the principles that I believe to be essential for the permanency of a free government like ours; it is so directly inimical to the permanency of the principles of the Constitution itself, and to the enforcement of the guarantees of the Constitution, that I have thought proper to oppose it, and for these reasons I have entered my protest. I place my protest upon record. I cannot cognize the principle either in a Territory or in a State, for the reasons I have quoted, of allowing aliens, not eitizens, not entitled to the pro tection of the Government, not entitled to the right of petitioning this Congress for redress of grievances, to control me, or to control my State, and to break up that equality by which alone this Union can be pres rved. For these reasons I vote against the admission of Minnesota with her present Constitution.

I told my visitor of the coincidence, which we have hailed as a good omen, and so fell to busi-

the views of no less a man than John C. Calhoun, who, standing here in vindication of the rights of the South, and for the principles of this Government, foreseeing the dangerous consequences which might result in 1836 gave the warning not only to the Senate, but to the country, of the dangers that would result from this cheap suffrage which was being bestowed, or attempted to be bestowed, upon the States then coming into the Union. Mr. Calhoun said:

"When Congress has exercised its authority by passing a uniform law of naturalization, (as it has,) it excludes the right of exercising a compelled to allow him to vote, what was not novel, and had been already much used; that it would be infinitely better for the plates to arise naturally out of the text; and that I should like to take my own way, with a freer range of English scenes and people, and was afraid I should ultimately do so in any case, whatever course I might prescribe to myself at starting.—

My views being deferred to, I thought of Mr. Pickwick, snd wrote the first number—from the country on the States has exercised its authority and not being made a citizen, would not the Southern States, according to this doctrine, be compelled to let him vote? What would become States.

Mr. Kennedy. If the gentleman will allow me to go on, I shall come directly to that point. It is to protect the rights of the Southern States that I take the position which I have announced. I say a majority of the people of this country, through their State action, should not have power to direct and control the legislation of Congress by violating the naturalization laws of the country. The distinguished gentleman from whose speech I have quoted, and whose argument is complete on this subject, says on the very point upon which the Senator has put the interrogatory:

expressly for the use of Mr. Seymour. We started with a number of twenty-four pages instead of thirty-two, and four illustrations in licu of a couple. Mr. Seymour's sudden and lamented of thirty-two, and four illustrations in licu of a couple. Mr. Seymour's sudden and lamented death before the second number was published brought about a quick decision upon a point allow the origination; the number became one of thirty two pages, with two illustrations, and remained so to the end. My friends told me it was a low, cheap form of publication, by which I should ruin all my rising hopes; and how right my friends turned out to be, every body now knows.

It may be asked if Ward was not able to pay more than the sum offered. Suppose he was? The leasing of the Prison was purely a business transaction between him and the State, and both parties might have been expected to do the best they could for them-

During the two years which elapsed between the adjournment of one Legislature and the meeting of the other, many changes had been made in the Penitontiary. The yard had been much enlarged, giving space for new buildings and increased facilities for ventilation; new, and more improved machinery had been put up; new buildings have been erected; the cells have been improved; the number of mechanics in the Prison are nearly double what they were two years ago; and, altogether, such improvements and additions have been made as to render the lease of the Prison worth more than double what it was when Mr. Ward was elected. Being fully convinced that he could afford it, and still reap handsome profit, Mr. Ward offered the Legislature $12,000 per annum to renew his lease. have gotten it for less, but paying even that sum of the age. the Prison should be leased at $8,000 per annum. WASHINGTON, April 28. Senate-Mr. Stuart took ground in favor of Mr Crittenden's amendment in preference to this miserable conference committee proposition.

He spoke till nearly 3 o'clock, at which time were only 22 Senators present. Mr. Pugh replied at length to Stuart's speech, closely following the various arguments he adadopt that instrument by means of negro suf-frage, showing that all these proceedings were roid, and that there is no other legal Constitution in Kansas beside the Lecompton Constitution .-Mr. Pugh spoke till after 4 o'clock.

Mr. Doolittle replied to Mr. Pugh, asserting that the issue raised by that Senator as to free negroes voting under the Leavenworth Consti-tution was a false one, the only object of which could be to raise prejudice in the minds of the people of slaveholding States, and thus embar rass the action of the free people of Kansas.— He illustrated the case of the Kansas conference proposal by the simile of a family of fair daught ers, all of whom Samuel, their father, has richy endowed except young Kausas, whom he in dies dislike to pass unmarried.

At this stage of the proceedings an agreement was effected to adjourn and finish the subject to-

House-Mr. Davis of Md., as a representative of a Southern slave State, in her name solemnly protested against this attempted interference with State rigths by a condition of admission. Had it not been urged by Southern gentlemen that Kansas should come into the Union on an equal footing with the original States? This was the law of the South on the subject.

Mr. Stephens was not surprised that Mr. Davis opposed the bill, but was surprised at the grounds of his opposition. He (Stephens) was born and reared in that school, and if any doctrine was cherished by him more than another it was rights of independence and sovereignty of the seperate States of the confederacy, and he main-tained that this substitute more fully and compictely carried out the doctrine than the Senate bill, for which he was willing to vote, and more so than the Crittenden amendment. If Kansas had made an application for admission as a free March, 1858. State, he would vote for it as readily as for a slave | April 3, 1858-3w. State.

In reply to Mr. Davis, he showed that Iowa and Louisiana were admitted on the fundamenta condition in the former case similar to that in the pending proposition. The objections made by the gentleman from Maryland were founded sole ly on a pretext. In conclusion he earnestly appealed to the flouse to end this question with the view to go on with public business. He was ready to defend the proposition from beginning to end and in every word and line.

Mr. Gilmore inquired-Is the Constitution sub Mr. Stephens-I tell the gentleman distinctly

Mr. Keitt repudiated the doctrine advanced by Mr Davis. He was not willing to commit the rights of the South to that gentleman's custody. fle denied that the Federal Government is soy ereign, and said each State is sovereign. He gave his reasons for supporting the bill.

Mr. Ringham did not find fault with the bill because it annexed conditions, but because a great crime was sought to be perpetrated, not only against Kansas but against the Federal Constitution and the sacred rights of human nature The bill does not submit the Constitution, but bribe in land. If rejected Kansas must suffer the penalty. It was simply an act of despotism attempted to be imposed by Congress under cover of our national Constitution, which bears the name of Washington. Better that the Constitution should perish than any precedent be place ed on the statute book that Congress shall dictate to freemen under pains and penalties, or force them into the Union as a State under a Constitu tion they never made.

Mr. Clingman said that as this proposition was not amended he presumed gentlemen had made up their minds, and he therefore moved the previous question.

Mr. Stephens suggested that the vote be taken to-morrow at 1 o'clock. Mr. Marshall, of Ky., hoped that no such agreement would be made. The vote had better be taken to-day. Cries of "agreed."

"GENTRAL KENTUCKIAN." PUBLISHED IN LEBANON, KY.

Lebanon, since the completion of the Railroad, connecting it with Louisville, is a point of interest to a large section of country. There are hundreds of persons abroad who are in want of information upon various topics connected with it, such us the prices current, facilities for doing and having business done here, &c., and the citizens of Leb mon themselves, wish to inform the public at large, that it is one of the most enterprising and finarishing towns in the interior of the State, and that it offers great inducements as a place of residence to men of almost every honorable trade and profession. To supply these wants, of people abroad and citizens at home, we have determined to publish "The Central Kestuckhas"—a paper devoted to the Commercial, Agricultural, Literary, and Moral welfare of the community in which it is circulated.

It is hoped that we shall be able, by attention to the interest of alteoneerned, to supply a desideratum long
